

the level and frequency of knocking, the knock control function can be improved both in the steady and transient state as shown in Figure 2. The engine power is improved with the adoption of the knock control system as shown in Figure 3, resulting in considerably better performance and driveability of the vehicle.

